Field study

Write an imaginary first-person account of the most amazing field trip you can imagine.

Keep in mind: A good story has a lot of details. Use as many descriptive words as you can to help the reader feel what it's like to be on that trip.

Bonus: How would you change your story to be about the most disastrous field trip ever? Which details change? Does it start ideal and take a turn for the worse? (Use the back of this page to write.)
