
Teacher for the day!

Where to start: From morning until night, kids follow a schedule they don't have control over. This exercise asks them to get creative about how they'd spend their time. Start with a conversation about what their real schedule looks like.

Prompt: Imagine that your teacher is absent and the school couldn't find a substitute. The principal has asked you to plan the day's schedule for your class. How will the day go?

How to go deeper: Would you want to take over this job for the rest of the year? Why or why not? (Use the back of this page to write.)
